

Privacy Policy

We, at Marston's PLC, care about and respect your privacy. We'd like to explain what personal information we have about you and how we use it, as well as letting you know about our practices with regard to your privacy so that you know exactly what is happening with your data and what we are doing to keep it safe.

We are Marston's PLC! You may also know us as Marston's Inns, Revere Pub Company or one of our other trading divisions or group companies from time to time. Where we refer to "we" or "us" in this policy, we mean Marston's PLC or any company or division in our group.

If you have any questions about this policy or your privacy, you can find us or get in touch at Marston's House, Brewery Road, Wolverhampton, WV1 4JT. Our telephone number is 01902 711811.

We have appointed a Data Protection Officer for Marston's PLC who can be contacted via DataSecurityInformation@marstons.co.uk.

We are registered in England & Wales with Company No. 31461 and our VAT number is GB100019352.

The Law

Data Protection within the UK is currently governed by the General Data Protection Regulation, the Data Protection Act 2018 and the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations ("Data Protection Laws") and we conduct our activities in line with these.

In relation to this website we are the Data Controller and CST Group Ltd (cst-group.com) are the data processor as the host and administrator for this site. We ask you to read our website terms of use in conjunction with this policy.

This privacy policy supplements other notices and privacy policies and is not intended to override them. It should be read in conjunction with other privacy policies that we may provide on specific occasions when we are collecting or processing personal data about you so that you are fully aware of how and why we are using your data.

A Glossary is also included at the end of this document to explain some of the terms we use in this privacy policy.

+What information do we collect?

We collect a wide variety of information and the types we collect from you will vary dependent on whether you're an individual customer, another business, ordering a product or a service or participating in a promotion or competition (amongst other things). Here are the types of information we may collect from time to time along with sources which tell you where we may receive the data from.

Information we may gain directly from you:

- When you sign a contract or agreement with us;
- To participate in a discussion board or other social media function on our sites;
- To enter a competition, promotion or survey that we are running;
- When you report a problem with one of our websites;
- When you apply for a job with us;
- When we require a credit check in conjunction with your application; and
- When you visit our offices.

+Why do we need your personal data?

There are a number of reasons we may request or collect your information. A summary of these can be found below:

- For the administration and support of a contract such as an order of goods, an operations agreement or a service you've requested;
- For the administration of a job application;
- For the administration of your shareholding;
- To conduct a credit check in line with your application (if required);
- To request ongoing credit reference services to ensure your ongoing suitability for credit terms (if required);
- To respond to an enquiry, feedback or complaint you may have sent to us;
- To improve the products or services we offer;
- To administer our websites including troubleshooting, data analysis, testing, research, statistical and survey purposes. Also to keep it safe, secure and accessible;
- To administer a promotion, offer or competition that you may participate in;
- To notify you about any changes to our services; and
- For the communication of marketing materials (including e-mail, and in certain circumstances, phone calls);
- For absolute clarity we do not intend our marketing materials to be received by anybody under the age of 18 due to the nature of our business. Your personal data may be used to determine whether you meet these criteria.

+Marketing

We may use your details to make an informed decision on products or services we think you may be interested in. This is marketing and we will always ask for your consent before we do this where we intend to send you materials via e-mail or text. We will also always ask your consent before we pass your details to any external third parties so that they can market to you too.

We understand that you may change your mind about receiving these types of emails or texts so you can ask us to stop at any time. Just follow the unsubscribe link on any marketing communication we send to you and we will promptly remove you from our database. This will only apply to data you have supplied in accordance with signing up to marketing services. Data provided for other purposes will remain in our systems in line with this policy.

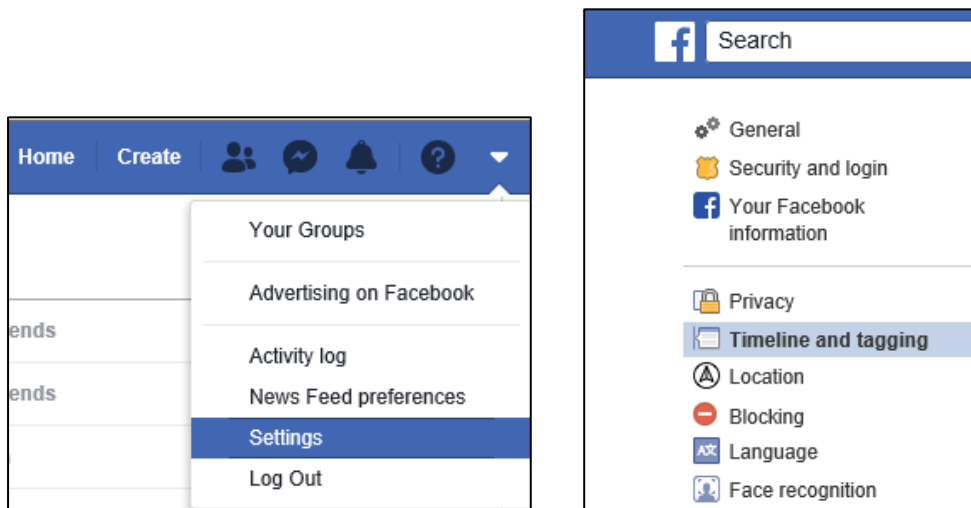

+Promotions & Competitions – Publication of winners

From time to time we may offer interactive promotions and competitions via social media platforms. When you choose to take part in these activities you should be aware that on some occasions the promoting party may choose to announce the winner of the event by ‘tagging’ them in an announcement on the relevant social media platform. We have certain obligations when running competitions or similar events including publishing details about the winner however this does not extend to identifying a particular individual via this method. If you are uncomfortable with this practice you have some options in order to conserve your right to privacy.

1) Use the social media platforms’ settings panel

We have used Facebook as an example here, but all social media platforms should have similar functions.

Log into your account and navigate to the settings menu. Then click Timeline and Tagging in the left-hand options menu.

Use the options to decide who you want to be able to tag you on your timeline and on the news feed, and even activate a review system to approve tags before they are posted publicly.

2) Contact us

You have the right to contact us to ask us not to publish your details in this way (or any other way). This is known as the right to object. Whilst we may not publicise your details to the general public, we may still need to inform the Advertising Standards Authority to confirm that our promotion or competition was genuine. Please contact us at DataSecurityInformation@Marstons.co.uk for more information or to raise an objection.

+On what basis do we process your data?

The lawful basis for processing varies depending on the processing activity.

+Who might receive a copy of your personal data?

Throughout the course of activities, it may be necessary for an external third party to receive a copy of your personal data. All of our external third parties are thoroughly vetted and are subject to contractual requirements and assessment of security standards in order to become an approved supplier. They are only permitted to process your personal data for the specified purpose and not for their own benefit.

Your data may be shared with any member of our group or trading divisions but external third parties may include any of those set out in the glossary, as relative to your circumstances, or third parties falling into the categories below.

- Business Partners, suppliers and sub-contractors where they are performing a contract we have entered into;
- Analytics and search engine providers that assist us in optimising our site;
- Website & website services hosts including payment processors;
- Credit reference agencies;
- Agencies that assist in sending our marketing, informational or news communications; and
- Authorities or organisations where there is a legal obligation for us to do so or for the prevention of fraud; and +Where is your data stored?

Your data may be transferred to and stored at a destination outside the UK where we use external third parties. It may also be processed by staff operating outside of the UK who work for us or for one of our suppliers. These staff may be engaged in the fulfillment of your order, the processing of your payment details and the provision of support services (amongst other things).

We will only transfer personal data to countries where the GDPR applies or that have received an adequacy decision. Alternatively, a transfer may occur where we have adequate contracts approved by the Regulator which protects personal data in the same way that it is protected in the UK or where another appropriate safeguard exists. We make a thorough check and have strict requirements (in line with the law) in order to approve this type of processing in consideration of our suppliers.

Any information provided to us is stored in our secure servers and any payment transaction data is encrypted using SSL technology. Where you have a password, which enables access to certain parts of the website you are responsible for keeping the password confidential. Please do not share your password with anyone.

Unfortunately, the transfer of information over the internet is not completely secure. We do our best to protect your personal data, but we cannot guarantee the security of your data when it is transmitted to our site. Once we have received your information, we will ensure that we strictly monitor procedures and security measures to keep it safe.

Our site may contain links to and from the websites of our partner networks, advertisers and affiliates. If you follow a link to any of these websites, please note that these websites have their own privacy policies which we do not accept any responsibility or liability for. Please check these policies before you submit any personal data to these websites.

If you would like specific information about where your data is stored in relation to a particular process, please contact us.

+How long will we keep your data?

We will only hold on to your personal data for as long as we need it to fulfill the purposes we collected it for. This includes considering the amount, nature and sensitivity of the data and the risk of any potential harm mishandling of this data may cause. We also consider if and when we can achieve the purposes we collected it for or if we can complete this without the personal data. We consider legal, tax and reporting requirements that impose limitations on how long we hold the data for. It may be kept for a longer period if we reasonably predict there will be an element of legal action within our relationship with you.

Please contact us if you would like to find out how long and why we keep your personal data.

+What are your rights?

Upon occasion, you may be entitled to certain rights under data protection law. These are laid out below but a full breakdown of their meaning is available in the glossary. You can enact any of these rights by contacting us via DataSecurityInformation@marstons.co.uk or on 01902 711811.

- Right of Access to your personal data
- Right to rectification of your personal data
- Right to erasure of your personal data
- Right to object to processing of your personal data
- Right to restrict processing of your personal data
- Right to data portability

There is no fee applicable to any of the above, however we may charge a fee or refuse your request if it is unfounded, excessive or repetitive.

We aim to respond to valid requests within one calendar month, however in certain circumstances it could take us longer. This may be because you have submitted a number of requests or your request is particularly complex. We will keep you updated with your request along the way if this is the case.

We may need to verify your identity and ensure your rights to the personal data we hold on occasion. We will always make sure our request is reasonable and in line with the information or right you are requesting. This ensures we are not sending the data to somebody who is not entitled to see it or acting upon a rights request that has not been legitimately made by the person who is entitled to it.

+Changes

We regularly review our policy so that we can ensure it is accurate and informative. Any changes will be made on this page. Please check back frequently for updates.

It is also important that any personal data we hold about you is up to date and accurate. Please update us if any of the details we hold about you change so that we can ensure our records reflect these changes.

+Contact

Questions, comments and requests regarding this policy are welcomed and should be directed to any of the contact details at the top of this page.

+Glossary

Some terms we use in this policy may be difficult to understand so we've provided a breakdown below to help you clarify what we mean.

LAWFUL BASIS

Legitimate Interest means the interest of our business in managing and carrying out our business functions so that we can give you the highest quality services/products and the best and most secure experience. We consider and balance any potential impact on you (both positive and negative) and your rights before we process your personal data for our legitimate interests. We will not use your personal data where our interests are overridden by your fundamental rights (unless we have your consent or are required or permitted to by law). If you need further detail on how we assess our legitimate interests against any potential impact on you in relation to certain circumstances, please contact us.

Performance of Contract means processing your data where you are a party to a contract and we need your personal data in order to carry out that contract or to take steps at your request if you are thinking of entering into a contract with us.

Legal obligation means processing your personal data where we have to comply with a law that applies to us.

Consent means you have specifically let us know that we can process your data for the purpose already given to you.

EXTERNAL THIRD PARTIES

- Website Hosts – In this instance CST Group Ltd (cst-group.com) are the host of this website;
- Merchant Services providers;
- Providers of accident management systems, insurance managers and claims handlers;
- Agencies providing distribution services for marketing materials and or service information, whether electronic or in hard copy;
- Credit reference agencies;
- HMRC, regulators or other authorities as necessary;
- Providers of prizes or incentives in relation to competitions, promotions or surveys;
- Share registration and management service providers;
- IT Systems and administration services providers;
- Advisors or agencies acting on our behalf such as solicitors, auditors, insurers, registrars and collections agencies;

YOUR LEGAL RIGHTS

This is a breakdown of what each of your rights mean and the results you can expect when you enact them.

- Right of Access to your personal data – This is usually called a 'Subject Access Request'. You can request a copy of personal data to see what we hold about you and to check why & how we are processing it and that we are processing it lawfully. We may be required to suitably redact (obscure) elements of the requested detail to protect the rights and personal data of other individuals.

- Right to rectification of your personal data – If you recognise any of the personal data we hold on you to be incorrect or incomplete you can request it to be corrected. In certain circumstances, we may require proof of accuracy of any new data being submitted.
- Right to erasure of your personal data – If you believe there is no fair reason for us to hold an element of your personal data, you can ask us to remove or delete this from our records, On occasion you may want to exercise this right on a successful objection to processing (see definition below). If for any reason, for example, to comply with a legal obligation, we cannot delete your personal data we will action your request as far as possible and provide to you a reason as to why we cannot fully comply with your request.
- Right to object to processing of your personal data – If we rely on legitimate interest as our legal basis for processing or the legitimate interest of another third party, you can object to our processing if you feel it impacts your fundamental rights and freedoms. We will reassess the legitimate grounds we have for processing your data and on occasion we may demonstrate that they are sufficient in overriding your rights and freedoms. Specifically in relation to direct marketing, please see the section above entitled ‘Marketing’.
- Right to restrict processing of your personal data – You can ask us to temporarily pause the processing of your personal data in certain circumstances. For example:
 - If you have objected to our processing of your personal data, but we are assessing whether our legitimate grounds override your rights and freedoms.
 - If you want to ensure that it is correct or complete before we continue to use it.
 - If we are processing the data unlawfully but you do not want us to delete it.
 - If you ask us to keep the data where we no longer need it, as you require it to establish, exercise or defend legal claims.
- Right to data portability – This applies to automated information originally received on the lawful basis of consent or performance of contract. You can ask for a copy of the related data and for it to be transferred to a third party of your choosing in a commonly used, machine readable format.
