

MARSTON'S

It is with great sadness that as of tonight (20.3.20) all of our pubs, bars and restaurants will close until further notice. This closure is a response to tougher Government measures to enforce social distancing and therefore reduce the spread of the Coronavirus.

Until now, we have remained open, ramping up our efforts to support the local communities of which we are a key part. However, closing our pubs, bars and restaurants in order to keep our employees, guests and communities safe is now the right thing to do.

We really hope that our doors won't stay closed for too long and that we can be back playing the important role in our community that we always have. In the meantime, watch this space, we are looking at ways in which we can offer services and support that may be valuable to our locals, such as takeaway food and drinks, and delivery options.

Please note that although our pubs, bars and restaurants are closing, our hotels, breweries, depots and head office will remain open, following the stringent health and safety standards outlined by the public health authorities.

As loyal guests, we will keep you updated when the situation changes and we look forward to welcoming you back and raising a glass with you in the not too distant future.

Until then, please stay safe and look after each other.
